

MONTGOMERY COUNTY PLANNING DEPARTMENT
THE MARYLAND-NATIONAL CAPITAL PARK AND PLANNING COMMISSION

TO: Montgomery County Planning Board

April 6, 2011

FROM: Pamela Dunn, Project Manager, Zoning Code Rewrite

SUBJECT: Zoning Advisory Panel Appointments

In March 2009, the Planning Board selected a group of community representatives, architects, developers, and other land use specialists to review, recommend, and provide feedback on new ideas and proposed zoning text for the Montgomery County Zoning Code Rewrite. The panel's analysis and feedback is an integral part of the process to revise our current zoning ordinance.

The following candidates are being proposed for appointment, to be effective immediately:

Jane Seigler: A graduate of Brown University and Rutgers University Law School, Jane completed a judicial clerkship with the D.C. Court of Appeals then entered private practice as an antitrust and utility litigator. She completed her judicial career as Government Affairs Counsel with the Government Affairs Office of Waste Management, Inc. in Washington D.C. Jane retired from active practice to devote full time to being chief operating officer of Reddemeade Farm, Inc., in Ashton, Maryland. Reddemeade Farm is one of the largest commercial riding stables in Maryland, operating since 1984. Jane is the current Vice President of the Maryland Horse Council, former member of Montgomery County's Agricultural Advisory Committee, and organizer and speaker at the MD Horse Council Annual Equine Business Seminars, 2007-2009. Jane has served on numerous boards and committees related to the equine industry. She was also actively involved in the legislative consideration of the Montgomery County Equestrian Facility Zoning Text Amendment, which became law on April 5, 2004.

Federico Olivera-Sala: Mr. Olivera-Sala has been practicing architecture for many years, with a concentration in urban design and regional planning. Prior to joining SK&I, his current firm, Mr. Olivera-Sala was an Associate Architect with the Argentinean firm of Guiraldes, Cordeyro & Soifer in Buenos Aires. He received two urban design awards for resort buildings in Buenos Aires, as well as five commissions for conceptual master plans for communities surrounding Buenos Aires. Mr. Olivera-Sala also gained professional experience as the co-founder of a firm he managed in Buenos Aires for six years. His company provided services from conceptual design to construction documents to construction administration for a variety of building types, ranging from residential to commercial, and including an interior design practice. Mr. Olivera-Sala was a faculty member for six years teaching Urban Design at the University of Belgrano in Buenos Aires. He received his Bachelor and the equivalent to US Master's degree in Urban Design from the University of Belgrano's School of Architecture. As Senior Associate at SK&I Mr Olivera-Sala he is in charge of feasibility studies and the Planning Department. He acquired vast experience in all sort of zoning cases in the West Coast Region, from New York to Florida.
